At the Woman's Club. "French Impressionists" was the subject of a perfectly charming lecture given yesterday afternoon by Miss Adela Williams before the members of the Woman's Club. Miss Williams has spent a good many years abroad, and her work was an artist's hand, and her quite a prominent figure in art circles here. Some of her work has been exhibited in the Paris Salon, and her exhibition of portraits and quaint figures scenes some months ago at the Jefferson was largely attended.

She first took up the school of now famous artists, who at one time were scoffed at for their seemingly unheard-of digressions from the ordinary rules of art, and described some of the pictures painted that had brought forth such a storm of abuse in Paris.

The word, "impressionists," originated with a picture made by one of the leaders of the new art. Up to this time all the skies were a particular blue, the clouds a particular gray, but these men used pure tones and had no time to study arrangement—only the atmosphere that would reveal the impression. They painted en plein air, and their doors and their disciples of the open air, and this change marks a very important date in the history of French art. The history of the pictures of the noted artists mentioned by Miss Williams in her address, is the history of the impressionists, or Impressionists, with the defiance of these men one's gaze is directed to the outward world or reality, and the result is a personal vision of the subject. The most important private collection of this school is that of Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer, of New York.

The tea tables were decorated in bowls of white flowers, and the hostesses for the afternoon were Miss Ethel Clements, Mrs. W. R. Robins, Mrs. John Upshur and Mrs. Christopher Tompkins.

Miss Daniel will meet the literature class for the last time this season tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock. The subject will be "Thomas Hood, Humorist and Poet." This meeting will close one of the most delightful classes of the club, and the attendance this year has been unusually large.

Plano Recital. A brilliant musical was given last Saturday afternoon by several pupils of Mr. Hahr at his studio on Linden Street. The studio was prettily decorated for the occasion and crowded with guests. Those taking part in the program for the afternoon were: Misses Louise Barker, Ellen Broadbent, Bowling Green, Zayde Branch, Beatrice Brown, Martha Charles, Minnie Cogbill, Susie Cooke, Mary Evans, Winston Gentry, Edith Michaels, Bessie May Powell, Dorothea Rueger, Marion Spicer, Margaret Weliger, Emma Gray, White, Mrs. Francis Ravie, Wadleigh, of Petersburg, Herbert Rueger, Winston Ivey, of Lynchburg, and Bassett Hough.

Composers represented were: Beethoven, Dorn, Gottschalk, Mascagni, Mendelssohn, Rachmaninoff, Rubenstein, Sinding and Weber. The opening number was a symphonic poem, "Les Preludes," by Liszt, played by the Metropolitan Orchestra at the music festival this week, and the closing number, "The Storm and Variations," for string orchestra, by P. O. Moré. Both of these compositions were played by Messrs. Hahr and Hough. Mrs. Wadleigh gave a brilliant rendition of "Valse de Salon," and the audience was most enthusiastic in applauding.

Says a Norfolk exchange: "Dr. and Mrs. Walter J. Adams entertained Wednesday evening at an exceedingly pretty dinner at the Country Club in honor of their guest, Miss Rene Chatain, of Richmond. That Well Known Woman's Tonic, Cardui, So Says Mrs. Bryner, of Cameron, Ill.

Cameron, Ill.—"All my lady friends," writes Mrs. A. Bryner, of Cameron, "whom I have induced to take Cardui, praise it very highly.

"About five years ago I was all run down, I had been afflicted with female trouble for several years.

"The doctor told me I would have to have an operation, but I began to take Cardui, and before I had taken half a bottle I felt like a different woman.

"I am only too glad to give you the privilege of printing my testimony if it will induce any suffering women to try your wonderful medicine."

In cases of serious sickness, dragging on for months or years, it is certainly important that the patient should get the medicine most likely to do her good.

How can you tell? By reading the record of its success in cases similar to yours.

Has any medicine an equal record to Cardui in the length of time it has been tried by the people and in the relief it has brought to thousands of suffering women?

No, not one. Try Cardui, then, for your troubles, for it will surely help you.

Your druggist will recommend it; if you ask him.

Will Be Reargued in Supreme Court. Case of Interest to Every Municipality in North Carolina. Charters Granted. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.) Raleigh, N. C., May 1.—An issue of very great interest to municipalities in every part of the State is to be argued this week in the Supreme Court, involving the right of a town to require a railroad company to conform to a street grade by lowering it, so that the tracks will not interfere with the proper drainage of the street. The argument before the court is on its own motion, for the reason that the court is badly divided, and desires to hear the counsel on the issues from their respective viewpoints.

It hopes that the justices may more fully agree upon a ruling. The case is in the City of Goldsboro, where the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, which was first duly argued six weeks ago along with other appeals from the Goldsboro district. The suit involves lowering the grade from six to eight inches several squares on a Goldsboro street.

The town proposes to make into a beautiful boulevard. The railroad company refused to obey the ordinance designed to enforce the change of grade, and procured a restraining order against its enforcement. This is the form in which the case gets to the Supreme Court. Aycock and Winston and Humphrey are counsel for Goldsboro, and George Elliott and W. C. Munroe for the railroad company.

Three Districts of Rockingham County Vote for Compulsory Education. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.) Harrisonburg, Va., May 1.—Three districts of Rockingham county—Central, Plains and Linville—with a total population of 18,000 people, to-day voted on the question of compulsory education, deciding in favor of the measure by a vote of 281 to 21, with several precincts to hear from.

Last week Harrisonburg, the county seat, blazed the way by the overwhelming vote of 354 to 11 in favor of the measure. Two weeks from to-day the two remaining districts, Stonewall and Ashby, will vote on the question. They have a population of 15,000.

Rockingham county is the second county in the State to take advantage of the referendum or enabling act, which was passed by the General Assembly of Virginia in 1908. About a year ago Alleghany county voted approvingly on the measure.

Six weeks ago the Harrisonburg School Board applied for an order which was fixed by Judge Haas for April 25, with the above result. Following Harrisonburg's lead the districts fell in line one by one.

In parts of the county there developed some opposition on the part of the freedom-loving mountaineers to whom the word "compulsory" did not sound good. Other timid voters feared that under a compulsory law, where there were no negro school buildings, the blacks would be compelled to go to schools with the whites. And again, some people took the extreme ground that the measure was in violation of the doctrine of "personal liberty."

The opposition, however, was unorganized, and with the press championing the cause, and teachers, ministers and public-spirited business men campaigning the county in favor of the law, the result was never in doubt.

The law will compel the attendance in the nearest school of all children between the ages of eight and twelve years for a period of not less than twelve weeks in a year.

The law will greatly increase the attendance in the mountainous parts of the Valley, and will doubtless make necessary the erection of several new school buildings.

Among the speakers for compulsory education, who stumped the county were Rev. B. F. Wilson, D. D., of the Presbyterian Church; W. J. Dingledine, of the Rockingham National Bank, and Dr. John W. Wayland, of the State Normal School.

White, both tobacco planters of the adjoining county of Caroline, secured record prices for portions of their tobacco crops in the Richmond market the latter part of last week. One lot of Mr. Mahone's crop brought $13 for 100 pounds. His whole crop, 3,700 pounds, averaged $13.65. Mr. White got as high as $35 for a portion of his crop.

Liquor Reports Must Tell More. Commissioner Cabell Orders Distillers to Give More Complete Information. Not satisfied with the reports which have been made in the past by owners of distilleries when executing bonds to carry on their business, Commissioner of Internal Revenue Cabell has issued an order instructing the distillers to make more complete reports. Each year the bonds are given on May 1, and on account of the short notice Commissioner Cabell has extended the time for filing these reports until June 1.

However, the distillers were permitted to execute their bonds yesterday, but if satisfactory reports are not furnished the department before the first of next month the bonds will be revoked.

The idea of this order is to secure more detailed information concerning the equipment and size of distilleries. In the past it has been customary to furnish details of the distillery room only, not referring to the engine room and other parts of the distillery.

Under the new plan the whiskey manufacturers will be required to give information concerning the whole plant, and everything situated within fifty feet of it.

All of the twelve distilleries which are now operating hereabout furnished bonds yesterday.

Bronze medal and $1,000 for a home. A Parks Rushford, aged twenty-five, saved Elbert G. Cunningham from drowning at Mannington, W. Va., January 19, 1907. Bronze medal and $1,000 for a home.

John R. Graham, aged thirty-six, saved from drowning George W. Thomson, and attempted to save C. Lee Lipscomb at Thickety, S. C., March 9, 1910. Bronze medal and $1,000 to liquidate indebtedness and other worthy purposes as needed.
